The meeting began with EC member introductions.

1. Adoption of the Agenda

Adopted

2. Report of the President

2.1 Perspectives and Vision

Silbereisen provided an overview of his vision for the Union, which includes increased inclusion of psychology in all parts of the world in the Union's activities and purview, increased action and visibility to all National Members, and a more constant level of EC participation in the work of the Union. He urged EC members to focus on specific tasks within the larger vision, and to leverage support within their own institution; He applauded the tremendous progress in securing financial resources and expressed the hope that the new publishing arrangements would provide high industry standards for publishing.

Silbereisen noted that although substantial, the absolute size of the new financial resources is still insufficient to achieve the Union's goals and the Union needs a steady flow of outside funding, including an endowment and grants and contracts from foundations or others.

Silbereisen called on the EC to further the Union roles of representing psychology to the world and offering psychological expertise on pressing social problems. He urged the EC to develop a "product mode" and to team up with foundations, publishing companies and others to produce capacity building, teaching, reference materials, for the world.

While acknowledging that the International Congress of Psychology is one of the premier products of the Union and is an important showcase for psychology, Silbereisen urged the Union to focus on regional conferences and smaller events, including side events to the larger Congress. He also urged the Union to capitalize on the visibility offered by recognition through awards. The Dogan award is an example of an activity that produces important outcomes in terms of visibility and recognition to the Union.

Just as the Union needs to be all-encompassing in terms of inclusion of psychologists, it needs to be all encompassing in terms of representation of content areas. It is important to be include all types of science – basic, applied and translation science.

Silbereisen summarized his vision as giving priorities to that which we can achieve, being inclusive, and improving both the financial situation and recognition to the Union.

The EC was appreciative of the comments of the President.

The President pledged to assure that every member of the EC is asked to accomplish tasks that are appreciated and that are matched to his/her background
